

2002

ENLOE “Magnet High School of America” Site Planning Impact on Achievement

The site Master Plan for the Enloe “Magnet High School of America” in Raleigh suggests a correlation between student performance and the over-all building design and site master plan.

Low achieving students and gifted students appear to receive reduced educational opportunity because of the building design – “The Learning GAP”.

The Master Plan solution addresses and solved this problem.